BIG ECONOMIC PLAN STARTED BY ROOSEVELT

Putting Jumbled Checkbook in Order May Take Fifty Years

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Four cabinet officers were set to work Wednesday by President Roosevelt on a plan he has conceived for a long time—a broad policy of national economic development similar to that authorized for the Tennessee Valley.

At a press conference he told reporters that the plan will provide a place for the hundreds of thousands out of work in normal times and also will help the lot of millions of others.

Extension of that Tennessee Valley experiment involves flood control, power, reforestation, navigation, decentralization of industry, reclamation, elimination of the marginal lands for cultivation, prevention of soil erosion—in short, virtually everything that affects the economic welfare of the vast areas sloping back from the country's great river systems.

President Roosevelt has planned the annual cost of the plan at between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000 for an indefinite period.

In time, Mr. Roosevelt feels that the sale of water from the forests and other returns from the Tennessee checkerboard order would make the various projects self-sustaining. He has also expressed full confidence in the "bankability" of his scheme.

Needle 'Threaders' Come To Deadly Grips

Canadian honours for needle threading are claimed by Martin Antoine of Brockville, Ontario, but Felix Locher of Los Angeles, is said to dispute the claim. The grounds that Antoine used to big a needle and too small a thread. Felix himself mastered the art on a mountain-climbing expedition in the Swiss Alps and can thread 73 strands of thread through a No. 4 needle, whereas the Canadian used a No. 3. Thus another international squabble is in embryo. Locher suggests an international sweepstakes with no holds or splices barred.

ENQUIRY IN ORDER

Investigation, prompt, thorough and impartial, should be made into the alleged scandalous work camps at Kamsburg and Winterburn, from which camps large bodies of men deserted on Monday and "rode the rails" to Edmonton.

If men are to build roads and rifle ranges at 20 cents a day wages, they are at least entitled to good food, plenty of clothing, and good accommodation as can reasonably be provided. Camp conditions are given as the reason these men quit and came to the city. They should be given an opportunity to tell their own story, and an opportunity to learn, in what respect the conditions are not what they should be.

A WAR AGAINST TRADE

France and Great Britain are plunging into a trade war. Sanitary may prevail and shorten the calamity, though it is sanguine to hope for that in a world gone over to the frenzied doctrine that a country can only prosper by beggaring its neighbor.

When Britain went off gold, France imposed quotas to stop the flood of British goods which poured across the channel, which had to be paid for in gold. Britain, in turn, refused to be sold in Britain at competitive prices. Later on France wanted to raise a loan in London to stop the drain of gold from the British Government demanded that these quotas be removed. Britain has only remained in part. Britain has imposed a 10 per cent tariff on French goods. France has retaliated.

Barring Canada and the United States, Britain and France have about as strong reasons for wanting to trade with each other as any two important countries on earth, and as much to lose through breaking off commercial relations.

If these countries cannot strike a bargain to avoid the mutual damages of a trade war, there is small enough chance that the nations generally will dismantle their irritating tariff walls until a series of general elections shall give their distressed people a chance to elect a government determined to throw the trade-killing governments into the discard and institute policies for the revival of international trade and the restoration of world conditions.

HANDS OFF

From Paris comes official information that France and other members of the League of Nations may be ranged about the League of Nations in his attempt to restore order in Austria.

Mr. London Sir John Simon said Britain would not interfere in the internal affairs of Austria and recognized the stand of Dollfus that interference from any other quarter could not be tolerated. Germany being the quarter particularly alluded to.

Which is all very well so far as it goes, but doesn't go any distance toward a solution of the root cause of the Austrian trouble. The political disturbance in that country is the direct and logical outgrowth of an impossible economic situation. A relatively small group of people, with neither fertile land nor basic resources for industrial operations, are being squeezed out by hostile tariffs which forbid them a market for what they can produce, while the sterility of their country forbids them a market for the development of a self-contained economy.

Austrian "integrity" in the circumstances means nothing more than continued isolation. Austrian "independence" means no more than freedom to live on short rations and pay interest charges on loans that can never be liquidated.

The Austrian people, whatever their political crimes in days gone by, were thrust into that intolerable position by joint action of the victorious Allies, operating through the League of peace and the League of Nations. Having created the situation, it is for the League to tell Austria how it can get out of it, and to permit the incorporation of the country into the German republic if that is what the Austrian people prefer.

Hints of the employment of force, under or outside the auspices of the League, to hold the Austrian people in poverty are insults added to injury, even though they are couched in the language of Austrian preference to Naziism.

"MORITUR TE SALUTANT"

By a majority of 24, the members of the House of Commons voted down the want of confidence motion proposed by Right Hon. Maclean King as an amendment to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. The majority thereby declaring that the ministry—in its policies of dear money, trade-killing and deflation—enjoys their confidence and that of the country.

The Government is to be congratulated on a hollow victory more sweeping than the ministers have ever hoped for. That 110 members could be found in parliament who would say the Government has the confidence of either themselves or the public was unthinkable until it happened. They should, as they strove to record their votes, have greeted Premier Bennett in the chant of the gladiators: "They who are about to die salute you."

According to press despatches there were two defections when the vote was taken. Mr. A. M. Carmichael, Conservative member for Kindersley, and Mr. Donald Kennedy, U.F.A. member for Peace River, deserted from their ranks. The C.P.R. is in proclaiming their support of the Government and approval of its policies. Whatever feats of artful dodging these gentlemen may resort to in an attempt to obscure the fact, that is what their action amounts to.

The motion which the Progressive member for Kindersley and the U.F.A. member for Peace River voted against reads as follows: "We respectfully submit to Your Excellency that Your Excellency's present advisers do not possess the confidence of the country."

Messrs. Carmichael and Kennedy chose to go on record as saying the electors in their constituencies endorse the policies which the "present advisers" of His Excellency have imposed upon them during the last three years. The electors will speak for themselves whenever the "present advisers" venture to give them a chance.

Poems That Live

THE TRIUMPH
Have you seen but a bright light glow
Before rude hands have touched it?
Have you marked but the fall of the snow
Before the wind has blown it away?
Have you felt the wool of beaver,
Or suan's down ever?
Or have you seen the wings of the bird,
Or the hard ice of the river?
Or have tasted the bee of the bee?
Or so white, O so soft, O so sweet is she?

EXPORTS TO BRITAIN

Canada maintained her position as leading supplier of wheat to the United Kingdom in 1913, although there was a decrease in her shipments of over 1,200,000 cwt., as compared with the previous year, writes Mr. J. H. English, Canada trade commissioner in London, in the Commercial Intelligence Journal. Canada has also maintained her position as leading supplier of food and increased her shipments to 4,200,000 cwt. An extraordinary feature during the year has been the renewed interest shown by Canadian exporters in the British market for bacon and hams. While total exports fell by over 2,000,000 cwt., the share of the bacon market increased to 505,000 cwt. from 181,000 cwt. in 1912 and 49,000 cwt. in 1911. Imports also have recorded a considerable increase over the previous year. For the third year in succession there has been a further reduction in the imports of cattle, due to increased production within the country. However, Canadian shipments rose to the highest figure for some years, reaching 51,423 head—a three-fold increase over 2013 head.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Mrs. Mary E. Dicker, aged 49, went before a St. James' court last week to ask for a divorce. She set out her reasons in a chronological order. Here they are:

One—A week after the wedding her husband discovered she had $200 in a bank and demanded the money.

Two—When she refused to give up the money, he choked her.

Three—He beat her twenty times in six months.

Four—Since their separation he has continued to visit her and beat her.

Five—He nagged her every night till 3 a.m.

Six—He wanted her to open a "blind pig" before he became legal.

Seven—He threatened her life several times.

Eight—He called her "terrible names."

Nine—When visitors called, he met them at the door and asked to define the purpose of the C.C.F. He replied, "It's object is to prevent the dissemination of phenomena."

He invited them to express his view in opposition to the C.C.F.

It isn't safe to trifle with any of those fruit grocers in the Okanagan Valley, half of whom are English university men, and the other half of the learned professions. The local "haysed" pondered for a moment and said: "I regard the C.C.F. as a heterogeneous conglomerate embryo of idiosyncratic anomalies, impossible of practical application."

After he had recovered from the shock the lecturer felt like Wallace Berry as the westerner in "Dinner at Eight." When Marie Dressler waves him a farewell and calls him her Lochinvar, Berry turns to his friend and asks: "What was that name she called me?"

Three teen age boys were picked up by the police at Edmonton last night. They were charged with breaking into a house and stealing a car.

Applications will be made at Ottawa for an extension of time for the commencement and completion of the Edmonton-Slave Lake railway.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—From Springfield, Mo., comes this question: "I am troubled with a freezing spell for about twenty minutes, followed by a severe headache. The pain is in the part of the skin below the ears has begun to swell and burn. I have been using an ointment, but it does not seem to do much good. This trouble could be coming from my nerves?"

ANSWER—It is entirely possible that the swelling and burning sensation which you notice in the skin below the ears is due to some derangement of the nerves. I doubt very much if any ointment applied externally would be helpful in your case. It is better to seek medical advice. It is all right to use it if you find it nothing. The best general advice I could send you is to seek a doctor's advice. It is better to seek medical advice. It is all right to use it if you find it nothing.

Which Is More Important?

After staying up late at night to read many letters sent to me by you who were so kind to find certain parts of your letters were sticking in my mind. These parts were the ones in which you told me how you think you are sick with the disease which you have. This part of your letter is interesting to me because I realize that in many cases the suffering produced in the mind of the patient is as keen as any suffering produced in the body.

I am now going to repeat to you some of the statements from the letters. The first part of each quotation will tell you which disorder is present and the second part will tell you how the patient is thinking or feeling about his trouble. I believe you will find in many cases the mental reaction is stronger than the physical reaction.

"I am a young woman of the home living type and have been over my shoulders. On account of the scars left by the disease I cannot wear low necked party dresses like other girls do, and I feel sure that, if I keep on refusing to wear them, the physical reaction will give way and I will have a home and family of my own."

"My doctor tells me I have a small tumor. I can't sleep at night as I am afraid it will turn into cancer."

"I have a severe pain in both knees. It is driving me crazy to think that I may be crippling the rest of my life."

"Please help me cure my bad heart. I must get well as I have to support my mother and I can't bear the thought that I cannot take care of her."

"My heart is so poor I get cranky over nothing at all. I know that I am making my children unhappy and I feel that I am driving my husband away from home, but I don't know what to do."

"My husband is a salesman. He has a very bad case of eczema which affects his face and he has to wear a mask. He is so ashamed of his face as he feels sure that they are staring at this ugly eruption."

Flavor Dessert With Maple Syrup in Spring

By SISTER MARY

Maple syrup is one of the few products that is wholly natural and cannot be produced in any house or grown "under glass." It is usually considered a limited to certain sections of the country and is short. Fresh maple syrup can be available on the market only after the warmth of the sun starts the sap to circulating from the roots of the maple tree. The trunk and branches of the maple tree are cut in the fall and the sap is collected in a bucket.

The first run is considered the finest and indeed it does make a delicately flavored and light colored syrup. It usually commands a higher market price than the syrup made a bit later but all syrup made before the buds begin to grow on the maple trees is desirable and delicious.

Served plain with warm biscuits, pancakes and waffles, maple syrup adds much to these popular and simple foods.

ADD FLAVOR TO DESSERTS.

Desserts sweetened with pure maple syrup have a taste that can't be imitated. Cakes, puddings and frozen desserts are amazingly good with maple syrup.

Beverages can be sweetened with maple syrup in place of "simple" sugar with excellent results. If you have never used maple syrup as a sweetener for certain cocktails, try it because I'm sure you'll like it.

Many delicious candies are made with maple syrup. Creams, taffies, and chocolates are all improved by the confections that gain distinction from the use of maple syrup.

Maple gelatine is a simple dessert that an invalid or a small child may enjoy as well as the average adult.

MAPLE GELATINE

One and one-half tablespoons granulated gelatine, a tablespoon cold water, 1 cup hot milk, 1 cup maple syrup, 2 eggs (whites), 1 teaspoon salt.

Soften gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Add scalding hot milk and stir until gelatine is dissolved. It has the popular strawberry color. Put unbeaten whites of eggs in a large bowl and beat until stiff, gradually adding maple syrup.

What New York Is Wearing

By HELEN WILLIAMS

The original form of this surname was MacNamee from Celtic words "mac" meaning "son" and "Namee" meaning "warrior." It is an important district in Ireland. The prefix "Mac" was the ancient name for the descendants of the Gaelic word "MacNamee" or "MacNamee." The full meaning of the name is "son of the warrior from Meath."

The representation of the MacNamee family came to America during the eighteenth century and established their homes in Pennsylvania, the Canadian and other Southern States.

Your Children

Head-Strong Youth Must be Shown Grim Realities of War

Yesterday I had in my mail an ensuery from Tokyo, Japan, a book entitled "Sakari no Kani," "The Fearance of Cherry Blossoms."

It consists of many of the stories, and being an Englishman, I have translated myself for the sake of the sufferings of the Japanese people, the almost fanatical patriotism of the Japanese people at home and the "glorious spirit" that blossoms in the warriors to die on the battlefield. There was not a cherry blossom that could get the picture, just about the highest achievement they can attain.

PATRIOTIC GESTURES

There was a time, not so long ago, when we all felt the same way. If we didn't actually urge our soldiers to die, we at least encouraged them to die.

It was all such a grand hurrah on this side, and everybody gloried in himself and his magnificent exploits by feeling virtuous and patriotic.

Isn't it human beings to look up, take boys by the neck and then off, and then cry over them (for awhile) and fuss about them when they are broken and bloodied in hospitals?

of guns and bullets? When the last war broke out most people were

Clumsiness Will Spoil Marriage Now Hand Beauty Vastly Improved

Famous Actress Uses Her "Paddies" With Grace

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

A famous modern artist, whose pictures are known all over the world, claims that she considers the hands of the lovely Katherine Cornell the most expressive of all.

It is true that there are more divorces now than there were in the past, the greatest modern improvement is in marriage, and never before were there as good husbands and wives as there are at present. This may seem a strange saying to those who believe that in the good old days that are no more, husbands and wives lived and cooed for 40 or 50 years without ever giving each other a surreptitious peck that all men were faithful and tender and kind to their wives and that every wife was a pin-fathered angel who kept her husband in his knees thanking Heaven for his luck in having got her.

All of which is, of course, no more than a sentimental house of cards with which there are no apples with a flavor such as they were in the olden times. Children and that no chef can cook the way that mother did. In reality we have improved on marriage until our grandmothers wouldn't know it. We have linked on wedlock, and put in a gadget here and there to the altar to unite two fortunes.

Dorothy Dix

It is just as much more comfortable to take the life journey in an eight-cylinder automobile than an oxcart.

Consider some of the advantages of the modern marriage. In the first place, it is a matter of inclination and not of compulsion. There are practically no "arranged" marriages. No girl and boy are dragged into matrimony because they wish their parents' sake. They marry to please themselves, and if later on they find out that they have guessed wrong about each other they have, at least, had a run for their money.

Also, in the modern marriage a man can be certain that he is being married for himself alone and not for a meal ticket, for practically every girl can support herself as well as her husband.

Marriage is not yet a perfect institution nor are husbands and wives all that they should be, but they are certainly an improvement on the past. They are on the up and up. DOROTHY DIX.

It is true that love does not always last and that tastes change even in husbands and wives so that the thing that ravished our fancy one day falls upon our palates the next. But even so the modern marriage based on romance may be a gamble, but it is not a racket.

Then, too, the modern marriage is a much better affair than the old-fashioned marriage was. When our grandmothers were married they might almost have married "shadows" for all the good that they brought into the home. They were married to a life of hardship and a life of struggle.

Of course, grandmothers had their fling now and then if we so inclined, but grandmothers would have been a scandal if she hadn't found all the recreation she wanted in her own home and occupied herself with having babies and raising them. What the neighbors would have said if she had belonged to clubs and headed movements or taken trips by herself, one trembles to think.

But marriage now is not a prison. It is a pleasure house. Husbands and wives no longer live in the chains that bind them together. They are united by an elastic band that gives each the right to a life of his or her own. Husbands and wives don't have much about doing their DUTY to each other any more. They do it for pleasure for each other.

Grandma grabbed all of grandma's money. If she had any, and grandma had money, she would have passed it on to her daughter. Grandma had to ask grandma's permission to join a club or go to see her mother. Grandma could read the scripture lesson. Several sick calls were reported. The marriage meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. P. Cargill. The hostess was assisted by her daughter, Miss Florry Lee, in serving tea.

But, because of their brevity and significance, some French phrases have become incorporated into our language, and these are always proper to use in the right manner. For example, "fiance" and "fiancee" are the French words for "engagement" and "debut" is "day-bree," "cal-de-say" is "cool-day-say" and so on.

War's Waste Unveiled by Official Photographs

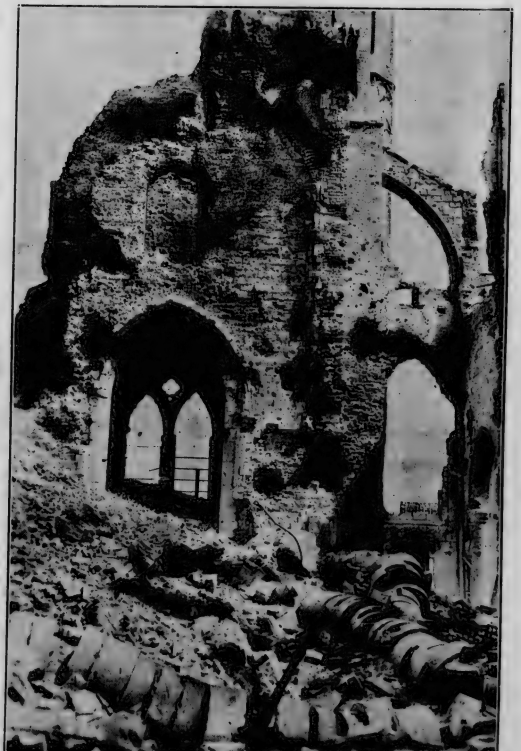

Millions of men, vowed to the work of destruction of billions in material, of millions of human lives, amidst such insufferable working conditions as galley slaves would have refused, is the war portrayed in the universally intelligible language of these Official Canadian War Photographs, which are here published by arrangement with the Canadian government.

ON THE SLOPE OF VIMY, THE MATERIALS OF WAR IN A SYMBOLIC HEAP—This photograph taken in April, 1917, near the old Canadian front line, shows the chief part of war, which was not charges and battles, but dreary, weary uninspired labor. Here lie the materials of war. The boxes of Stokes-gun ammunition, the sets of narrow-gauge rails, the heap of waiting stretchers, and there, flung down to wait their time, like any other damaged war material, the wounded. The light railways carried the materials of war up. And the wounded down. As far as you can see, along this dilapidated highway of war, is a string of toiling, suffering men. —Official Canadian War Photo.

SUMMER SCENE, SOMME, 1916—The first British attacks in July, 1916, in that battle which lasted right through to November, saw this valley used in an entirely new intensity by the British. This is a German main support trench, with dug-out entrances blown in by shells. The dug-outs caught fire, as you can see by the charred entrances. In time of peace, these chalk fields grow turnips for French farmers. Now they supply round-hug holes for men to hide in. And graves. —Official Canadian War Photo.

WORSHIP SUSPENDED—The interior of Ypres cathedral, taken in July, 1916, before the job of wrecking was half done. After all this efficient wrecking, what has been rebuilt, at Ypres or anywhere else? —Official Canadian War Photo.
